GRACE MANOR FEATURED IN PBS SPECIAL

Buffalo – Beginning July 27, 2004, WNED will begin airing a 13 part special developed by the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) titled “It’s an Age Thing”. The special will be focusing on the challenges faced by an aging America and all episodes will be hosted by Susan Steinberg.

One of the episodes features Grace Manor Health Care Facility, Inc, a long-term care facility, and Mrs. Daisy Pruitt, a resident who appears on camera with her daughter. The episode was filmed at Grace Manor in July, 2002 and now will be aired in most major markets.

“Mrs. Pruitt is an able spokesperson for Grace Manor,” stated David J. Gentner, President and CEO of Grace Manor. “She and her daughter can speak from both the resident’s and family’s perspectives.”

###

Grace Manor Health Care Facility is a 167-bed skilled nursing facility, specializing in long-term care and short-term rehabilitation. With its mission of offering culturally competent continuing care to Buffalo’s communities of need, Grace Manor is the only African American-sponsored nursing facility in Western New York. Grace Manor celebrated its 5th anniversary in 2003. It is located at 10 Symphony Circle.
